Mantle Of Boys In Blue To Fall On Legion, Is Donahey Belief

SPRINGFIELD, O., Sept. 10.—(By the Associated Press)—The history of the Grand Army of the Republic will be repeated in the American Legion, Governor Donahey declared today in an address at the annual convention of the Ohio department of the Legion.

"You are on the eve of a period," he told the Legionnaires, "when you will be the leaders of the state and nation; you have approached your task with the proper spirit; a true regard of all duties and unselfish desire of not only improving the condition of your comrades, but the betterment of the welfare of the country and the advancement of civilization."

In his talk the governor commended the Americanization work carried on by the Legion and urged the adoption of a policy opposing a large professional army during peace times. He also held up to the members of the Legion their duty as civilians.

"However great an asset you were to your country during the stormy period of the war," the governor said, "your potential value to the country has but begun; you are needed as badly in peace as in war."

The burden of Senator Fess' speech was a plea to the Legion to aid in the perpetuation of the constitutional American system, that part of which combined free speech and the right of public discussion is being endangered by "anti-government promoters" who have come to the fore since the world war. The soundest procedure to combat this evil, the Senator declared, is a program of public education. He placed the job in the hands of the Legion as the body most competent to do it.

The program of speaking was to be followed by a parade with about 5,000 men in the procession.

Tonight a block dance and military festival are to be held in the esplanade.

The state convention of the Society of 40 Homages of S. Chertoff, closed here yesterday with the election of state officers. Pinchot Turns Guns On Price Of Anthracite HARRISBURG, PA., Sept. 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Governor Pinchot, successful in his efforts to bring about a settlement of the anthracite controversy, today turned his attention to the question of coal prices.

His four-point plan for adjustment of the differences between anthracite operators and Union miners, formed the basis of a proposed new two-year contract agreed upon Saturday night by members of the operators' policy committee and officials of the Miners' Union. He took up the price problem in a letter last night to President Coolidge in which he suggested federal and state action toward readjustment of freight rates on anthracite, and announced his own purpose of calling upon the governors of all anthracite consuming states to investigate profits of dealers in coal, wholesalers, brokers, jobbers and retailers.

In his letter to the President, Governor Pinchot declared the total "legitimate" increase in the cost of coal under the settlement terms, would be about sixty cents a ton. Of this, he said, not less than ten cents should be taken up by all the operators, many of whom, he declared, could absorb the entire sixty cents increase and still make abundant profits.

"In fairness," he wrote, "the remainder of the sixty cents should never reach the consumer," but he added this amount "and probably much more" will be exacted unless public action is taken to prevent it.

He suggested the Interstate Commerce Commission take up anthracite transportation rates with a view to their readjustment and announced his intention of asking the Pennsylvania public service commission to consider the reasonableness of rates, within the state. He suggested that the findings of the coal committee on cost and profits in mining and distribution be made public as soon as possible.

"Re-opening of the mines now is dependent only upon ratification by a tri-district convention of Union miners in the anthracite region. The convention has been called for September 17, in Scranton."

The announcement was made in formal statement and carried a declaration of principles issued through State Senator George H. Bender, of Cleveland, who it is presumed, will be identified with Senator Burke in the campaign.

Lashed To Mast, Injured Seaman Goes Down With Ship; Rescue Efforts Fail

SANTA BARBARA, CALIF., Sept. 10.—(By the Associated Press)—A tragedy within a tragedy, was enacted about the Destroyer Delphy, which went ashore 75 miles north of Santa Barbara Saturday night with six other destroyers of the battle fleet. This tragedy resulted in the death of Seaman Pearson, whose given name and home, naval officers at the scene of the wreck, were unable to give.

As the Delphy crashed bow first into the rugged rocks near Arguello Light, Pearson was thrown down a ladder and both legs were broken. His comrades went to his rescue and succeeded in taking him on deck. There he was blinded by oil from the bursting fuel pipes. Nearly crazed by pain and desperation, he assisted the efforts of shipmates to rig up a breeches buoy to rescue him.

The vessel began to break and his comrades were forced to lash him to a mast in the hope of returning later to take him off. Other injured were taken ashore and just as the last man, except Pearson, was safe on the mainland, the Delphy broke in two and slid beneath the waves, with Pearson crying piteously for help.

Today as parts of the wrecked destroyer were being hauled to and from in the boiling surf, Pearson's comrades said they could distinguish his haggard face through the white and green of the sea.

Mad Dash For Liberty Ends In Death Of Ohio Convict

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Twenty-one hours of frenzied liberty ended Albert Dolloff, 23, a life term prisoner, in the Ohio penitentiary here, in a county, with three other convicts escaped over the walls Saturday, his life.

Dolloff, fell a victim to the bullet from the rifle of Marshal Ralph Chrysler, of East-Columbus, who fired on the quartette shortly before noon yesterday as they were scurrying from a small woods to a corn field, not far from the Columbus reserve depot.

Within a few minutes the corn field was surrounded by deputy sheriffs and other officials and two airplanes were roaring overhead seeking to locate the other three convicts. Four Amherst, 27, Cleveland, William M. Harris, Columbus, and Joseph Carney, Montgomery County. All efforts to apprehend them were of no avail and this morning officers were still searching for them.

Dolloff's mother, Mrs. Elmer Dolloff, of Pittsburgh, was to have visited him Wednesday, according to a letter found in his pocket. She said she was bringing his three-year-old sister, whom he had never seen. A dollar bill was enclosed. Dolloff was sent to the penitentiary for murder.

As Warships Pile On Rocks In Fog

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(By the Associated Press)—The theory was expressed today by high naval officials that a tidal wave or other seismic disturbance reacting from the Japanese earthquake, caused the disaster to Destroyer Division 11 off the California coast, yesterday.

SANTA BARBARA, CALIF., Sept. 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Twenty-three sailors dead and fifteen injured; seven destroyers of the Pacific squadron of the battle fleet held fast between rocks off Point Arguello Light in the Pacific Ocean between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

These are the outstanding consequences of the navy's major marine disaster in Pacific waters. The injured are being nursed at hospitals here. A train load of survivors is headed for San Diego, the naval base, while the seven ships are fast approaching to rocks in the incessant pounding of the surf.

The war ships went ashore while cruising from San Francisco to San Diego Saturday night shortly after 11 o'clock in a dense fog. Mistaken position in relation to the coast line is believed to have caused the crash. The destroyers were speeding through the fog hugging the shore. In steady file formation when they piled up on the rocks from 200 to 500 yards apart about three hundred yards off shore. The fatalities were divided between two destroyers. Seven were from the Delphy and the others (died on the destroyer Young, which turned over and sank in one minute and 37 seconds after she struck.

The other destroyers, the S. P. Lee, Nicholas, Fuller, Chumney and Woodbury, went aground in positions which gave their officers and crews a better chance for their lives than was afforded the crews on the other craft. The wrecks came while the destroyers were on a mission to search for the missing ship, the S. P. Lee, which had been reported missing by the other destroyers.

"Until the department has completed information," said Secretary Denney, "We must withhold any formal judgment. We can only express regret for the accident and deep sympathy for the loss of life was so comparatively slight."

An investigation already is under way. (Continued on Page Six)

Eclipse To Hide Sun's Glory For 169 Seconds

LOS ANGELES, CALIF., Sept. 10.—(By the Associated Press)—When the sky unfolds its most impressive pageant—a total eclipse of the sun—along the coast of Southern California today, the largest body of spectators in the history of modern science will be on hand to see it, according to astronomers gathered in this section to view the obscuration.

From the point of totality in this vicinity the eclipse will grade away gradually eastward across the United States to forty per cent in New England, beginning at 12:24 p. m., there will be 169 seconds during which the moon will hide the sun.

Total eclipses of the sun are rare; men of science point out, and total eclipses visible in well populated regions are extremely rare. This year, though the shadow of the eclipse will cover less than three-tenths of one per cent of the earth's surface, comparatively narrow shadow, 105 miles across, will strike a fairly populous portion of the United States, or will be within easy reach of a populous section and will be visible at the most favorable time of the day for scientific and lay observation.

Pinchot Being Talked For Vice Presidency

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Governor Pinchot, Governor of Pennsylvania, far vice-president of the United States on the Republican ticket with President Calvin Coolidge.

That's the talk here today following immediately upon the news of the Governor's successful mediation in the hard coal controversy, springing the action a strike of serious proportions.

Mr. Coolidge is lavish in his praise of the Pennsylvania governor. He wants everybody to know how much he appreciates Mr. Pinchot's work. When the Pennsylvania first came to the White House to volunteer his services, political folk wondered why Mr. Coolidge at the outset of his administration should pass up an opportunity to gain some prestige for himself. But there is ingrained in Mr. Coolidge's mind a wholesome respect for state governments, as he himself has been the Governor of Massachusetts. He felt as have others in the Federal government, that one of the difficulties America has had to face in recent years was a tendency to run to the White House with every industrial controversy of minor importance. States have not used their legal or moral influence as effectively as they might have done. There have been exceptions, as, for instance, Henry Allen in Kansas, but in the main the Federal Government has been constantly sought as mediator for the last 20 years by many serious "laws" been averted and the work of conciliation.

RESTAURANT IN TIP TOP SHAPE

The Queen City restaurant, which opened its doors on Chillicothe street recently, is enjoying a splendid patronage, but according to the genial proprietors the concern has been operating under difficulties. In the first place, the big refrigerator did not arrive until this week, and quite a few of the important fixtures showed up missing. This, the proprietors claim, has mitigated against giving the service they expected to give, and if any feel they have not received the service they expected the proprietors are indeed quite sorry.

Now, however, everything about the restaurant is in excellent shape and patrons can be assured of the very best of service and attention. The proprietors have planned something unusually good, which they will announce in a few days—something they are sure will meet with the approval of the people. The Queen City restaurant is one of which Portsmouth may well be proud, and there is no doubt it will receive the share of patronage.

THE ISLE OF RETRIBUTION

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Ned Cornet goes on a voyage to Northern Canada and Alaska to exchange two thousand silk and velvet gowns with the Indians for fine furs. Ned is accompanied by his fiancée, Lenore Hardeworth, and the latter's mother, Bess. Gilbert goes as seamstress. The crew consists of Captain Knutsen and his assistants, McNab and Forest.

Lenore and her mother suffer from the increasing cold because they are unsuitably clothed for a sea voyage. The craft runs into a gale and, because he is blinding too freely of liquor, the captain becomes an unsafe guide.

Bess and McNab steal into Ned's cabin and confiscate his remaining stock of liquor. This they throw overboard and when Ned goes to replenish his supply for himself and guests he suspects Bess.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I suppose you did it?" he demanded.

She nodded. "I did it to save you—from yourself. Not to mention perhaps saving the ship as well." His lip drew up in scorn. Angry almost to the verge of childish tears, he could not at first trust himself to speak. "You've certainly taken things into your own hands," he told her bitterly. His wrath gathered, breaking from him at last in a flood. "You ill-bred brute, I wish I could never lay eyes on you again!"

To be by far the most bitter moment in Bess' life, she had done right, but her payment was a curse from the man she had hoped to serve. All her castles had fallen; her dreams had broken like the bubbles they were. This was the answer to the calling in her heart and the longing in her soul—the spoken wish that she might pass from his sight forever.

But at his post McNab had already forgotten the episode of the liquor cases. Indeed, he had forgotten other matters of much greater moment. At the present his mind was wholly occupied by two stern realities—one of them being that the storm still raged in unabated fury, and the other that a drunken captain was driving his craft at a breakneck speed over practically uncharted waters.

Once more McNab lifted his head through the hatch into the pilot house; and for long seconds he studied intently the flushed face over the wheel.

"What now?" Knutsen asked gruffly.

"You've forgotten all the seaman's ship you ever knew," McNab retorted angrily. "There's no hurry about reaching 'Yar Island. And you're risking everybody's life on board sailing the way you are."

"Are you captain of 'dis boat'?" Knutsen demanded angrily.

"No, but—"

"Den get out of here. I know exactly what I'm doing. You're just as safe as—"

But it came about that Captain Knutsen did not finish the sentence. McNab was now to find out from Knutsen's lips just how safe he was. All at once he cried sharply in warning.

Before ever Knutsen heard that sharp cry, he knew what lay ahead. Duller though his vision was, slow the processes of his brain, he saw that curious ridge of white foam in the sea, that ineffective-looking trail of white across their bows. At the same instant his keen ears caught a new sound, one that was only half-revealed in the roar and beat of the storm.

There was not the pause of an instant before his great, muscled body made a dash for the door. He tried to apply the power of his engines in obedience to the sharp goad from above. And then both Knutsen and McNab braced themselves for the shock they knew would come.

The craft seemed to leap in the water, shuddered like a living thing, and the stern of the vessel, as described a long arc into the sea and the storm. It may have been that Knutsen shouted again—a meaningless sound that was lost quickly in the wind—but for seconds that seemed to drag into interminable centuries he sat absolutely without outward sign of motion. His great hands clutched his wheel, but it was as if the man had died and was frozen rigid in an instant of incredible tension. His face utterly without expression, Forest crouched beside his engines.

There was nothing that either of them could do. The waves and wind were a power no man could stay. All their efforts were as useless as Knutsen's shout; already the little ship was in the remorseless grasp of a great billow that was hurling her toward the ridge of white foam in front. For another instant she seemed to hang suspended as if suddenly taken wing and then there was a sheer drop, a sense of falling out of the world. A queer ripping, tearing sound, not loud at all, not half so terrifying as the bluster of the wind, reached them from the hold.

Cold, sober, Knutsen turned in his place and gazed down certain orders to Forest. In secret moment, if seemed, they were pulling the levers from the two little lifeboats on the deck.

XI.
Knutsen's brain was entirely clear and sure as he gave his orders on the deck. His hand was steady as iron. His failure to master himself had brought disaster, but he knew how to master ship, a tale like this. From the instant the Charon had struck the reef, he was the power upon that storm-swept deck, and whatever hope McNab had lay in him.

Almost at once the four passengers were on deck, waiting to take their meager chance in the lifeboats. The stress, the raging elements, those angry seas that ever-leaped higher and nearer, as if coveting their mortal lives, most of all the terror such as had never previously touched them, affected no two of them alike. Of the three women, Bess alone moved forward, out of the shelter of the cabin, to be of what aid she could. Her drawn, white face was oddly childlike in the lantern light.

Mrs. Hardeworth had been stricken and silenced by the nearing visage of death; Lenore, almost unconscious with terror, made stammering, sobbing sounds that the wind carried away. And in this moment of infinite travail Ned Cornet felt his manhood stirring within him.

Ned came up, and Knutsen's cold gaze leaped over his face. "Help me here," he commanded. "McNab, you help Forest and Julius launch the larger boat."

There was not much launching to do. Waves were already bursting over the deck. Knutsen turned once more.

"We want four people to each boat," he directed sharply. "Cornet, you and I and Miss Hardeworth in this one. The other girl will have to get in here too. The other boat's slightly larger. Mrs. Hardeworth, get in with McNab, Forest, and Julius."

THE YELLOW BEAM WAS BRIGHT UPON BESS' DRAWN, HAGGARD FACE.

"Put Mrs. Hardeworth in your boat, so she and Lenore can be together," Bess told Captain Knutsen. "I'll get in the other."

"The captain did not seem to hear. He continued to shout his orders. In the work of lowering the lifeboat he had cause to lift his lantern high, and for a moment its yellow gleam was bright upon Bess' drawn, haggard face. Further off it revealed Ned, white-faced but erect in the beat of the storm.

In one instant's insight, a single glimpse between the storm and the sea, he understood that she was taking him at his word. He said shortly: "Don't be silly—as I was." Then, lest she should mistake his sentiment: "Mrs. Hardeworth is twice your weight, and this boat will be overloaded as it is."

The girl looked at him quietly, nodding her head.

He helped her into the dory. Julius, who at the captain's orders had been rifling the cabins, threw blankets to her. Then, tenderly, lending her his strength, Ned helped Lenore over the wind-swept deck into the bow seat of the lifeboat, nearest to the seat he would take himself. "Buck up, my girl," he told her, a deep, stroking note in his voice. "I'll look after you."

Already the deck was deserted. The dim light showed that the larger dory, containing McNab, Forest, Julius, and Mrs. Hardeworth, had already been launched. There was no sign of them now. The darkness and the storm had already dropped between. They could not hear a shout or directions between the three men, not a scream of fear from the terrified woman who was their charge.

It was as if they had never been. Only the Charon was left, her decks awash and soon to dive and vanish beneath the waves—and their little group in the dim gleam of the lantern, at the oarlocks. Ned nearer the bow, Knutsen just behind. A great wave seemed to catch them and hurt them away.

Both girls sought refuge in troubled sleep. Ned sat with his arms about Lenore, giving her what warmth he could from his own body. Bess was huddled in her seat. Could their less rugged constitutions stand many hours of such cold and exposure? It was a losing game, already. The North was too much for them. Life is a fragile thing at best; a few hours more might easily spell the end.

But that hour saw the return of an ancient mystery, carrying back the soul to those gray days when the earth was without form, and void. Darkness had been upon the face of the waters, but once more it was divided from the day.

Even here, seemingly at the edge of the world, the ancient miracle did not fail. A warmth, like a mist, spread slowly; and the curtains of darkness slowly receded. The storm was abating swiftly now, and the dawn broke over an easily rolling sea.

Captain Knutsen, who had sat so long in one position—his gaze fastened on one point of the horizon—that he gave the impression of being unconscious, suddenly started and pointed his hand. His voice, pitched to the noise of the storm, roared out into the quiet dawn.

"Land!" he shouted. "We're coming to land!"

Mrs. Moore Throws Away Her Diet Rule

"I've thrown away my list of diet rules and am now eating at least four times as much as I did before taking Tanlac," said Mrs. William Moore, 721 Ankerst, St. Akron, Ohio. "I have recommended Tanlac to a lot of people for it surely has earned my highest praise. For twenty-five years I suffered from stomach trouble and had to observe strict rules of diet (as on my stomach caused my heart to palpitate so wildly I often thought I had heart trouble). For days at a time I had sick headache and so dizzy couldn't stand up."

"But Tanlac has ended my twenty-five years' suffering. My digestion is so good now I eat everything on the table and my health is perfect in every way. I must have tried a hundred different medicines, but Tanlac deserves all the credit for my recovery."

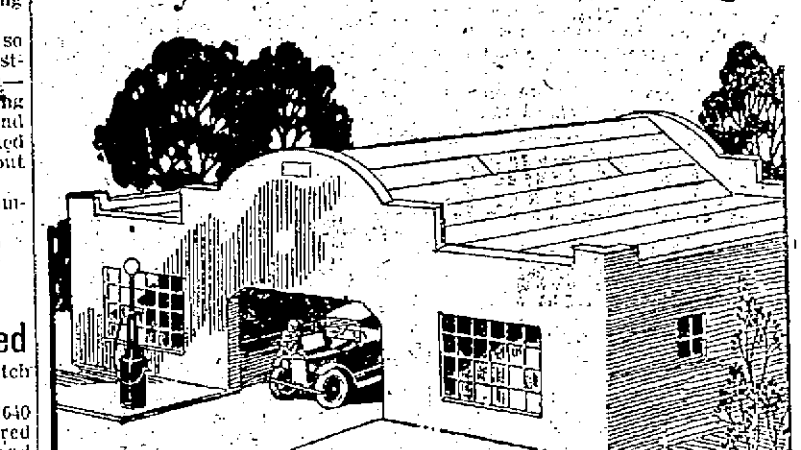

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—I saw an article in the paper the other night where a girl was complaining about the table manners of her beau, and I want to tell at girl right here and now to correct that manner. If a girl's manners are so bad that she marries him, or she will be able to do it afterwards, why, I am talking from experience. I have a man that I am certainly hamed of in more ways than one. I can't go anywhere to eat, and I can't have any one come to the house without being embarrassed. My husband eats with his knife, and he drinks out of his saucer, and he doesn't use a napkin. He won't use a napkin unless it be on his nose and various other disgusting things. I scold him and talk to him, and he always says he "found his mouth" for thirty years before he married me and he says he can keep on finding it without any further help from me. I just can't do anything with him, and I'm writing this letter in the hope that girls will not marry men with any table manners and that men will not happen to have any, will and acquire them before they let themselves upon refined and well-bred girls.

DISAPPOINTED WIFE.
I guess you can't teach an old dog new tricks, especially when they are not willing to learn, so I suppose the best thing to do is to let birds of a feather flock together. In other words let refined girls choose refined husbands and the girls who don't care can take the men who don't care. I don't believe there is anything quite so disgusting as to see a person eat with his knife and drink out of his saucer, unless it is to gulp down his soup.

Dear Dolly—I thought it was against the law to build fires out in the country or on hills. I know we have gone on picnics several times this summer but we have never built a fire because we thought we would be breaking the law if we did. Were we right or wrong?

BUNCH OF PICKNICKERS.
You are right. It is against the law to build a fire on any one's premises without the written consent of the owner. Even at that the fire must be put out, and not left to damage that or adjoining property. This law was fully explained in Sunday's Times. Would suggest that those interested clip it out for future reference.

Dear Dolly—I would like to have some information about my legs.

BLUE BELLY.
You can dye it any color darker than the present shade. Just buy a package of dye the color you would like to have it and go according to the directions printed on the envelope. If the dress is cotton buy the cotton dye, if silk the silk dye and if hair and half the same kind of dye. It won't happen to have the addresses of the movie addresses you inquired about.

TIMES READER.—If what you inquired about is not listed with the others that appear in the Times every week there is none in the city that I know of.

FAMOUS PLAY FILLED WITH MELODRAMA

"Little Church Around the Corner" Full of Romance and Human Interest At Eastland

"The Little Church Around the Corner," the Warner Brothers' Classic of the screen, which will be shown at the Eastland Theatre, beginning Monday is a screen adaptation of the famous stage play by Charles Blane. It has played in almost every theatre throughout the country, and is conceded to be the most popular romantic melodrama ever produced.

Much time and great expense went into the making of this picture. A mine specially constructed on the Warner Brothers' lot, cost above $25,000. It was an exact reproduction of a Pennsylvania mine, with shafts, underground passages, coal beds. Half a mile of tracks were installed on a street of miners' houses built.

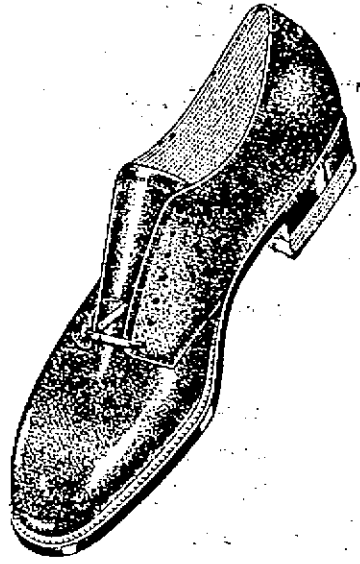

It is said that Director William Seiter chanced to be present during the Argonaut gold mine fire in California, when a score of men were trapped. His impressions of the disaster were put to use in directing the mine scenes of this picture.

The cast includes Claire Windsor, Kenneth Harlan, Hobart Bosworth, Walter Long, Alec Francis, Pauline Stark, George Cooper, Margaret Seddon, Winter Hall, Cyril Chadwick and Tom Kennedy.

"The Little Church Around the Corner" is the story of David Graham and Lella Morton. Within David's heart is torn with struggle. He longs to return to his people—the poor of a working town—preach to them and make their lives happy. His love for Lella Morton, the beautiful daughter of Morton, the millionaire mine owner, keeps him among the rich. He deceives himself into believing his fight against hypocrisy and vice will reform them. They consider him in the light of a matinee idol. Suddenly he wakes up to his plight. In a fit of revulsion he leaves the town returns to the home of his birth, in time to witness a great disaster in which scores of miners' lives are imperilled.

Brookhart Urges Labor To Unite To "Redress Economic Injustice"

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 10.—(By the Associated Press)—All producing labor, including all brain-workers, who earn their living by useful employment, was urged to unite, to redress what he pictured as economic injustice, by Senator Smith, W. Brookhart, of Iowa, at the opening of the New York State Fair here today.

Senator Brookhart also advised farmers to organize, he said, by being "whipped Wall Street," by becoming their own bankers.

Under present practices, said the senator, "out of the dollar which the laboring man pays for the products of the farm the farmer gets thirty-seven cents. The other half of the story is that out of the dollar which the farmer pays for the products of labor, the laboring man probably gets less than thirty-five cents." The economic system, Senator Brookhart said, "gives unequal rewards to farmer, laborer and capitalist."

"After the farmers have agreed among themselves, which is not yet completed, as they are still a minority, I have reached the conclusion that the interests of all producing labor are the same whether on the farm, in the factory, under the ground or over the steel rails. These elements make up more than 90 per cent of our people and united in a common cause and upon a common platform, they are invincible."

"The last year I have the figures, 1919, the wages of over nine million workers in manufacturing were only ten and one-half billion dollars or a little over $1,100 each. Since then wages have been reduced, probably below $900, while the cost of living continues very high and the profits of the big combinations have little abated."

"Farmers," said Senator Brookhart, "deserve twice as much in the banks as they ever borrow back for use in agriculture. They must become their own bankers through a co-operative system, with its own co-operative reserve. In the meantime, they should demand proper representation in the Federal Reserve Board. In all this labor will join them. In fact, labor is already leading the way in the organization of its great co-operative banks. The two united in this system will end the economic autocracy of Wall Street."

Eclipse

Eclipse expeditions from every quarter of the globe awaited its appearance in the path of totality, and for today's eclipse, the first total observation of the sun visible in the United States since 1918 and the last until 1925. Batteries of specially constructed cameras, spectroscopes, interferometers and other astronomical instruments were aimed at the heavens with overhead cloud airplanes over the predicted path of the moon's shadow, linking together the widely separated camps established by American and foreign observatories on Santa Catalina and Santa Clemente Islands, off Los Angeles, at San Diego and Eureka and other Mexican ports.

Newspaper men stationed at strategic points along the path of totality prepared to flash the path of eclipse to their readers from its beginning (11:20 a. m. on Santa Catalina Island) to the final phase of obscuration shortly after 2:00 o'clock (2:18 p. m. on Santa Catalina) while motion cameras and stand ready to film the solar phenomenon for cinema audiences the world over.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Henry W. Beehler.
A beautiful Christian life came to a close Sunday morning, at 2:15 o'clock, when Ada M. Moore Beehler, beloved wife of Henry W. Beehler, 1910 Grandview avenue, passed into that land from which no traveler ever returns.

Mrs. Beehler had been suffering from a complication of diseases for the past year, and through all her sufferings she remained hopeful and cheerful, never complaining of her lot, but bearing her burdens with that fortitude that had ever characterized her Christian life. Her close relatives and friends knew that death was only a question of time, but this did not prevent them from doing everything within their power to make her last days as comfortable as possible. Their devotion was ideal, indeed.

Mrs. Beehler was one of the finest of women. As a mother and wife she lived that her own might be happy; as a neighbor she was thoughtful and kind. Her life was beautiful in every way. Never a woman for show, she performed her missions of kindness and thoughtfulness quietly, and was never happier than when ministering to the wants of others. She was a devoted member of the First Christian church and while her health permitted was active in church attendance and was over liberal with her purse in helping prosecute its missions. There is no question but the life she led will have its reward, and it is much to be hoped that she will be reunited to know that she lived such an exemplary Christian life.

Ada M. Moore was born at Sciotoville, Ohio, October 15, 1862, the daughter of William and Catherine Moore. She received her education in Sciotoville schools and on September 27, 1882, was united in marriage to Henry W. Beehler, engineer at the Harrison-Walker plant in the East End. To this union two children were born: Frank Beehler, who survives, and Katie, who passed away several years ago. She is also survived by a grandson, Donald Warner, proof-reader on the Morning Sun. The funeral will be held from her late residence on Tuesday afternoon, September 11, at 2:30 o'clock, and in the absence of her pastor, will be conducted by Rev. J. C. Jackson. Interment will be made in Greenlawn cemetery.

Mrs. Alice Hoffman Loper.
William Hoffman, 1849 Ninth street, received word Sunday of the death of his mother, Mrs. Alice Hoffman Loper, aged 65, who passed away Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of her son, Oliver Hoffman, Columbus, after a long illness, due to dropsy. In addition to the two sons mentioned, she leaves two more, Clarence Hoffman of Columbus and Howard Hoffman of Cincinnati.

MR. GLOCKNER BUYS PROPERTY; WILL ERECT CHEVROLET GARAGE AND SERVICE STATION

Announcement was made Monday that Alex. M. Glockner, local Chevrolet dealer, had acquired the Maxwell property on Second street, just east of his service station at Second and Chillicothe. The property was purchased from Mr. and Mrs. W. T.

Gray, who controlled it since the death of the late Mrs. J. M. Maxwell. There is a large two-story brick residence on the property and the dimensions of the lot are 60 by 125. Shortly after the deal had been closed Mr. Glockner announced that he would have prepared at once by Architects Devoss and Donaldson for the erection of a three-story brick building to be used as a garage and service station by Chevrolet owners. The building will have frontage of 50 feet on Chillicothe street and will extend east 125 feet. Later on Mr. Glockner plans to erect a building on the corner of Second and Chillicothe streets to conform with the one he will have erected at once.

The Red Cross drive for Scioto County's quota of $5,000 for the relief of the earthquake sufferers in Japan is nearing the goal, and it is hoped the people of Portsmouth and vicinity will "go over the top" with the colors flying, when the last dollar has been subscribed.

Deal Means New Addition To Galena Pike

Through a deal closed Monday, J. Davis heirs. The tract adjoins the new Country Club and 600 feet of it faces the Galena Pike.

Mr. Shump stated Monday that he will subdivide part of the ground into building lots and will erect a summer home on a section of it.

Frank L. Marting and Edward Brebner, who had been attending the Conference returned home Sunday evening.

The committee in charge of the fund say that, although the quota has been fixed at the minimum, much more than that amount will be needed and there should be no let-up in giving until every citizen has had a chance to give their mite to this worthy cause. Persons should remember that any amount, no matter how small, will be acceptable, and also receive its own reward, as the Savior Himself has said that "even a drink of water given in His name will not go unrewarded."

Those who have not been asked to contribute to this fund, and wish to do so, may bring their donation to the Red Cross offices in the First National Bank Building, phone 1787 and some one will call for them.

disappeared before his identity was learned. A woman was in the machine and evidently was injured as her screams could be heard for some distance after the accident occurred. The driver elected to hit the store rather than move into a parked machine which he failed to see until right upon it.

Rancher on Western Prairie Marries Cranky Cook to Oblige His Old Chum.
In the door of his ranch house on a western prairie, Pete Barker showed Sam Sargo, "a real jolly man" with his old chum, Mac Towles, rode up the trail.

"Whoop!" shouted Pete. "Jest look who's here! Haven't set eyes on you since you saved my life back yonder."

"No," agreed Mac; "and speaking of that, I'm here right now to remind you of the promise you made then; but I'm most afraid I'm asking too much."

"Sho, I'll bet you ain't, no such thing. What is it? Come right out with it."

"Well, my wife and I want you to come over and marry our cook."

"Just listen to that! Is she awful homely lookin'?"

"Not so bad."

The Auerbachs pleaded guilty to conspiracy in connection with the diversion to bootleggers of thousands of gallons of alcohol withdrawn ostensibly for the manufacture of toilet articles.

Among the charges against the defendants are allegations that they directly or indirectly received large sums of money declared to have been paid by the Auerbachs to prevent official interference with their illegal activities.

Rembrandt was convicted of having attempted to bribe Fred Counts.

SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Fanning and Sen. Glenn, and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Edwards of Trenton, were the guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Harry I. Collett of Sixth street.

...she's the worst tempered woman that ever tackled a rolling pin. My wife don't dare go into the kitchen when the cook isn't feeling amiable, and I wouldn't hanker to, either. And she wouldn't let us discharge her, we've tried that, but she isn't simply wonderful here. Our only hope's in marrying her off, and we thought of you—but I guess the sacrifice is too much to ask—"

"Sacrifice nothin'!" shouted I. "I'll hike right home with you and marry the gal immediately, if she says the word. Things have been pesky quiet here lately; no fighting no nothin'." And anyhow, Sorbete never goes back on a promise. If an odd chum that saved my very life at the risk of his own makes a pint of so marvellous cranky cook, I'll do it. Come on—

Writer Fails To Give Firpo A Look In

BY SPARROW, MCGANN
(Special Correspondent, Copyright 1923)

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 10.—Having looked over both Jack Dempsey and Luis Firpo in the course of their preparations for the world's championship battle at the Polo grounds in New York next Friday night, the writer sees no one, but Dempsey.

At the same time, Firpo, through a stroke of luck, could win. If, by chance, that powerful right of his should connect with the champion's jaw at a time when the contender has not been weakened by punches, then a new king would take his place upon the champion's throne.

In other words, a man with Firpo's enormous strength and massive build will prove dangerous to Dempsey, so long as he is upon his feet and in command of his faculties. If he can work out a result on the basis of boxing science, stop him with a sheer, disgust. For Firpo doesn't figure at all. Not in any way can you give him a look in. He doesn't know anything about boxing as the sport is practiced by the expert initiators. The very things that the best teachers tell the novice not to do, Firpo does, and, on the other hand, he doesn't do things that the experts hold to be necessary if a boxer is to get anywhere in the game.

The writer doesn't know how Firpo's amateur advisers feel about it, but personally he would suggest that the Argentine stop trying to learn to fight after the American manner, resolved to do battle according to his natural gifts.

The statement is made because this does so very badly the things he has been trying to teach him. He has not got a left hand and he will not have one against Jack Dempsey. This is not to say he cannot try to use his port flippers against the champion. He probably will. But it will not bother Jack any and after the South American gets a wallop or two he will forget all about his left and seek to beat Dempsey's head off with his right.

And if he lands upon the champion's head with his right, Dempsey will know he has been hit. Or, perhaps, he may not know it, until some time afterwards. But there is where the luck will come in. Firpo will be lucky if he lands it, not only because he telegraphs it, but because it moves slowly.

Jack, of course, will surely not expect to keep moving always. Firpo's left and this will make it extremely difficult for Firpo to bring his death-dealing fist into play.

Firpo's bouts in Atlantic City have shown that anyone can hit him. His sparring partners have no trouble doing it. It is the simplest of their problems. And they can avoid a lot of Firpo's wallows. But always they receive a few and these hurt them, even getting that Firpo is pulling all his punches against his sparring partners. So Dempsey can hit him and will hit him early and often.

What then will happen? Will he be spurred to anger, furious about being dashed in with a whirlwind of fearful blows, anyone "if" which is qualified to hit Dempsey down, or will he get into a panic, and virtually quit? No one can tell. Firpo is not worried at all about Dempsey.

He doesn't figure that any living man has a chance against him. None can tell—not even he himself can tell—how he will act when the big surprise comes. If Dempsey shows he can't hit as he hit at Toledo, the battle ought not to go beyond the first round.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The experts agreed Dempsey's left hook is the key to his success. A jolting punch that travels to its target like a shot, undoubtedly is the blow with which the world's heavyweight champion expects to crush the championship aspirations of Luis Angel Firpo when they meet next Friday night.

This is the opinion of boxing experts who watched the champion in his snappy workout yesterday against a trio of light sparring partners. Dempsey used his left continually while punching the bag, shadow boxing and against his punch catchers. The experts agreed Dempsey's left is working faster and with greater accuracy than ever.

Jack Britton, former world weight champion, said today that in his judgment, Dempsey had shortened the swing of the hook slightly, making it more effective. Britton, a past master in boxing, watched the champion from the edge of the ring, and unvarnished at his skill.

"I never thought Dempsey could step around with so much speed and hit the way he does," he said. "His footwork is a relief to his tremendous coil, was in good humor yesterday. He joked with visitors at his cottage and twice drew roars of laughter from the crowd by playfully taking a couple of punches at Billy Lyons, a friend from Denver, who was refereeing the training bouts.

The champion plans to-day to continue his tapering-off process, working with light sparring partners.

Reds Win; Giants Lose

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The Cincinnati Reds pushed the Pittsburgh Pirates back into third place in the National League yesterday by trouncing them, 8 to 3.

The Yankees took two easy games from Boston, 6 to 2 and 4 to 0. Babe Ruth cracked out number thirty-four, while Witt circled twice and Scott once. The Red Sox made only three hits off Shawkey in the second game.

The Giants lost to the Brooklyn Robins, 6 to 3, in an uneventful game in which Fourier and Kelly pounded out homers.

The White Sox defeated the Browns in Chicago, 4 to 2 in a hard pitchers' battle.

The Tigers lost to the Indians in Cleveland, 5 to 3.

The Athletics trounced the Senators in Washington, 5 to 2.

The Cardinals shut out the Cubs in St. Louis, 3 to 0.

REDS BEAT THE PIRATES; ARE BACK IN SECOND PLACE

CINCINNATI, O., September 10.—Cincinnati advanced to second place in the National League yesterday by defeating Pittsburgh, 8 to 3.

Cooper, star left-hander of the Pirates, was hit hard in three innings. Lague was also pounded freely, but superb support kept down the Pittsburgh score. It was Lague's twenty-third victory of the season.

Captain Daubert, of the Reds, who was injured in St. Louis, Saturday, was unable to play, his place being taken by Foushee, whose long hitting was a feature.

DEMPSEY IS READY TO STRUT HIS STUFF

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 10.—(By the A. P.)—With his championship match with Luis Angel Firpo just five days away, Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight title holder, today declared he was ready to "do his stuff."

The tanned champion said he had worked as hard as he ever had trained since winning the championship four years ago, was in better shape than when he fought Tommy Gibbons in Shelby, Montana, July 4, and that if he did not decisively defeat Firpo it would not be, because he was not ready.

"I can tell when I'm in shape better than anybody in the world," Dempsey said. "I'm positive that I'm better than I was for Gibbons, and just as good as I was for Carpenter."

"Perhaps I'm not the same fighter I was when I whipped Willard, but that was four years ago, and a space of four years, especially on the wrong side of the calendar, makes a difference. I'm older, but more experienced."

The title holder boxed under the critical eye of Jimmy DeForest, former trainer of both Dempsey and Firpo, yesterday and the veteran conditioner was not profoundly impressed with what he saw. He said that in his judgment, Dempsey was not the fighter he was when he defeated Jess Willard, but despite that, still was good enough to conquer Firpo.

DeForest said Dempsey probably would win within two rounds, but that if the contest went over six the champion would be facing a highly dangerous situation. Dempsey, he said, however, was a 100 per cent better fighter than the big South American, could deliver a knockout blow with either hand, and is so fast and shifty that he would be a difficult target.

Dempsey stepped six rounds yesterday.

day, but only four of them seriously. His greatest demonstration was his speed. He moved about with the shiftness of a light-weight, but missed repeatedly against Farmer Lodge and George Godfrey, his two heavyweight sparring partners. The workout was characterized by the boxing expert as the worst showing in ten days. The fierce aggressiveness was missing from his attack and he was hit freely.

Dempsey, according to present plans, will leave camp for New York early Thursday afternoon. The championship is scheduled to do only light work tomorrow and Wednesday.

Firpo Starts Last Training Grind

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 10.—(By the A. P.)—Luis Angel Firpo today entered upon the last three days of preparation for his world heavyweight title match with Jack Dempsey to be held in New York next Friday night.

In his daily work-outs Firpo has been a puzzle. He has shown improvement in some things and at times has appeared as awkward as a yoke of oxen, drawing a heavy load over a mountain trail.

He has attempted to improve his boxing, he has worked hard trying to

The Black Sox were unable to hit Hunsen with any degree of success except in the second stanza when a couple of hits aided by misplays produced a brace of tallies and in the third another Sox batted over the park. Smith, Sox second sacker, led the attack with three safe blows. The second game of the series will be staged at Lucasville tomorrow night.

NO NEED FOR WORRY

THE possibility of another Ice Age overtaking this little planet of ours has been the subject of some anxious speculation in certain quarters. In fact, one writer, in commenting on the probabilities of the arctic glaciers sweeping down over the civilization of the northern hemisphere, gave birth to the following: "If such a catastrophe came, how quickly nations and individuals would stop warring against and robbing each other."

Just how quickly this millennium would be reached may be judged by the fact that the rate of movement of a glacier is less than one inch per day. Of course the speed varies with varying conditions, but the fastest moving glacier would hardly worry anybody now alive, nor their immediate descendants.

A glacier is a river of ice and frozen snow. The temperature at its bed is usually about 32 degrees. Frequently water flows beneath the ice. The glacier moves so slowly that it has only been in recent years that man suspected that they moved at all. While this movement is irresistible the damage done is mitigated by the melting of the ice-river at its mouth. A shifting of the earth on its axis would affect this melting process. It is conceivable that the ice might come down over our own continent. In fact, the explorer MacMillan is to make observations along this line.

But even so, like the probable cooling of the sun, the coming of the ice age is nothing for the present generation to worry over. As for stopping war and pillage, the impending doom of certain areas of the earth would simply cause a rush of population to other areas that would make our present troubles look like nothing at all.

UTOPIA

A country without an army, a navy, a national debt or an income tax—such is Tonga, last remaining native kingdom of the South Seas.

Every male in Tonga is presented with eight and a quarter acres of land when he reaches the age of 16. The treasury has $500,000 surplus, all public improvements have been paid for, and a complete educational system has been set up.

Tonga presents the nearest approach to Utopia on this planet. Although it is a tiny island, greater nations like our own might get some good lessons there.

Switzerland, another little country, is run on a different plan. The Swiss have the best drilled army in the world, they have no need for a navy, as the country is in the center of troubled Europe. The national sport is shooting and military practice.

Why isn't Switzerland like Tonga? Why does it have the big proportionate army that its taxpayers are forced to support? It is because Tonga is surrounded by the far reaches of the Pacific Ocean, and no other country has been greedy enough yet to grind it with the iron heel. Switzerland has gone through centuries of warfare with all the greedy nations that surround it. It is the victim of geography.

But Tongans and Swiss are alike in this—they mind their own affairs, they are prosperous and they have seen the value of education.

If all the nations of the world spend the brains and money on education that now go for war plots and rotten diplomacy, the Swiss could throw their guns away, and all the world would be like Tonga.

NAZARENE CHURCH NEWS

This evening at 7:30 District Supt. Rev. N. R. Herrell will be with us to deliver a message to the church. There will be a business meeting after the service.

The Lord has been blessing this work and we are looking forward and upward to a place of our own in which to worship. We have a building fund, and any financial support will be greatly appreciated. Also, every one is welcome and we want the Lord's people to feel free to come and take part in the services.

We are expecting to have a very able pastor on the field in a short time. We will only worship in the tent for one or two weeks more as it is getting cool.

Remember the service tonight is especially open to those who are interested in the salvation of lost souls. The mission of the Nazarene church is to help fallen humanity to find Jesus as their personal saviour. "For

Each year in a Park Avenue hotel there is a dinner attended by a group of elderly, substantial looking men. It is a dinner newspapermen, from the standpoint of human interest, could furnish columns about, but they do not send reporters. The guests are men who have won success. When coffee has been served all the waiters and bus boys leave. The doors are locked. No one, save diners, hear what is said. The guests have all served terms in prison, but have turned out to be useful citizens. They meet to discuss their activities during the year and to relate what they have done to help others who have strayed from the righteous path. A man who is an attendant at the dinner told in confidence that there was not a man at the table who makes a salary of less than $15,000 a year, and six of them are the owners and directors of big enterprises. They accepted Fate's bludgeoning and carried on.

Along Westchester roads there are camouflaged "neck stations," where motor cops hide to spot speeders. The salvationist, who as a rule has long hair and in many instances goes barefoot, begins chalking a message on the pavement. He starts out with: "This is a message for you. Stop before it is too late." A crowd gathers and then the salvationist begins to sing or recite. Afterward he takes up the collection.

$15,000 Robbery In Huntington; Thieves May Be Headed This Way

Police here were instructed Monday to maintain a sharp lookout for thieves, who early Sunday morning successfully executed one of the boldest robberies ever perpetrated in Huntington, when merchandise and cash between $15,000 and $17,000 were stolen from the Deardorff and Sisler Dry Goods store.

Relative to the robbery the Huntington Herald-Dispatch Monday said:
Merchandise, cash and securities totalling between $15,000 and $17,000 were obtained yesterday morning in the Deardorff-Sisler department store, by burglars, who broke open two safes, filled nine suitcases with fur coats, scarfs and dresses, leisurely selected from the stock, loaded their booty in an automobile marked on Ninth street and escaped as a score of people, unaware of the theft, walked in both directions in front of the establishment.

Believed to have effected an entrance shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday morning, when Night Watchman Charles Smith left the store, the burglars, thought to have worked with a woman accomplice, completed their work before 8:30 o'clock, when E. E. Riley, advertising manager, arrived. He found the front door ajar, with the lock, which had been twisted off by using a wrench, cleverly replaced so that the damage to it was observed, only after close scrutiny.

Chief Detectives Investigation
Chief of Police Mikliff, who took personal charge of the investigation, last night was following down a number of clues, but arrests had been made. It is confident that the robbery came after several days of careful planning; that the gangs had previously spent a number of hours on the premises studying the interior arrangement of the establishment and its safe.

That a woman assisted, or perhaps directed the robbery, seems established by the fact that only merchandise of highest quality was taken. $3,000 in Cash Taken
The loot, consisting of $3,000 in cash and Liberty bonds, and un-negotiable securities, worth approximately $2,000, twenty-four dresses for street and evening wear, priced at from $57.50 to $200, totalling $3,000; nine fur coats worth $4,000, a number of fur neck pieces worth $300, was collected from the balcony and second and third floors.
